

PAUL L. MCDANIEL, MBA,CBI
Board Member

Mr. McDaniel had the unique opportunity as a child to grow up as a wildlife biologist's son on a 72,000 acre Wildlife Refuge in North Central Nebraska. This provided exposure at an early age to hunting, wildlife conservation, knowledge of the outdoors, a good work ethic, and dogs. His father not only used dogs for hunting, but also used them for the biological work every day; this included locating grouse and waterfowl nests for research purposes, banding ducks and geese, predator control, and law enforcement. Since being exposed at such an early age, Paul has been passionate about working and training dogs for hunting.

Mr. McDaniel has fifteen years of experience in equity and debt transactions, finance, valuation, operations, systems integration, human resource allocation and property management. For nine years he managed a portfolio for a privately owned, transaction-based investment and holding organization. The portfolio consisted of equity positions of privately owned businesses in products manufacturing, distribution, marketing and commercial real estate. This included direct P&L responsibility in business operations, systems integration, equity and debt transactions, and property management. Since 2008, he holds the position of Chief Financial Officer for a group of five privately held companies in the high end furniture & accessories, real estate and design industries. Along with the direct financial and operational responsibilities, he has led re-organization and re-structure, human resources, systems integration, entity mergers & acquisitions - both debt and equity side transactions, and two startup businesses. Paul's entrepreneurial side has also led him to ownership positions in a small capital investment company and a technology startup business in recent years. He is a Certified Business Intermediary, and earned his MBA at the University of Colorado's Executive Program.

Paul believes that the Bracco is an incredible breed that has many opportunities to utilize their unique traits & talents in multiple arenas. He has a passion for working towards keeping the breed a "single type" breed, genetically healthy, while keeping the conformation and beauty intact according to the Working (Pastrone) Standard.

Paul welcomes the opportunity to serve on the Board of BICA. He looks forward to bringing together a level of business acumen and professional experiences with his passion of working/training/hunting the Bracco.

Mr. McDaniel has been a member of BICA since 2007.
